 - (i) shall confirm the order; and
 - (ii) if the child victim is more than 16 years of age, may extend the application of the order for a further period not exceeding 60 days after the expiry of the original period of 30 days; or

(i) vary the order by amending provisions contained in the order, adding new provisions to the order or revoking provisions contained in the order;

(ii) decrease the period for which any provision in the order is to remain in force or extend the period for a further period not exceeding 60 days; or

(iii) revoke the order; or

(b) if the court is not satisfied that there has been a significant change in circumstances, or that it would not be in the best interests of the child victim to vary or revoke the order, the court shall dismiss the application.

(4) On a review of an order pursuant to subsection (1), the evidence before the justice or the court on previous proceedings pursuant to this Act shall be considered as evidence, but the judge at the review may receive any further evidence that the judge considers relevant, including hearsay evidence if, in the opinion of the judge, the evidence is credible and trustworthy.

(5) In determining whether it would be in the best interests of the child victim to vary or revoke an order, the judge shall take into account the factors set out in section 4 of The Child and Family Services Act.
